UNITED WE STAND #850 STRONG

Our synagogue survived the Category 4 winds of Hurricane Michael on October 10, 2018 with relatively little damage.

From the Temple President
Mike Starkman

We are starting a new calendar year and it is wonderful to report that we celebrated a beautiful simchah this past month.

Pearl Amromin had her bat mitzvah and she beautifully conducted the Friday evening and Saturday morning service. We had a full sanctuary for both services. The services were officiated by visiting Rabbi Loewy, Rabbi Emeritus Congregation Gates of Prayer in Metairie, LA. We greatly appreciated his presence for both leading the bat mitzvah service and for his spiritual leadership during these trying times. His reflections on the congregation's current emotional and spiritual needs and his reflections on what happened to his congregation during hurricane Katrina provided some greatly needed comfort.

I would like to let you know how the Temple survived the storm. The building suffered some "minor" damage. The insurance estimate for repairs is approximately $32,000 and our wind and hail deductible on our policy is approximately $24,000. We are currently looking for a general contractor who will help us repair our building. We are also raising funds through a GoFundMe account and individual direct contributions. In total, we have collected approximately $13,000. We are also looking into a Small Business Administration Disaster Loan if we cannot raise sufficient funds.

To the best of our knowledge, no one from our congregation or friends were injured by the storm. That is the good news. Several of our members and friends, however, had significant property damage, and some will be leaving the area. Sonny & Alma and Lisa & Stephen have already moved, and we wish them well and great success in their new location.

Just as a reminder, we have a few resources that have asked us to provide a comprehensive list of individuals needing assistance. Please contact me or Robert Goetz if you are in need of assistance and we will ensure that the information is passed on to those agencies that may be able to help.

B'shalom

- Mike

Hurricane Michael is now 12 weeks behind us, but its effects will be felt for many months to come. No lives were lost, but property and family treasures were destroyed, and many of our members adversely affected. Because of the severity of damage to their apartment, Sonny &

Alma Glass were forced to relocate, and are now living in Lebanon, TN. Look for more information on our members in next issue.

Hurricane Michael
by Robert Goetz, Trustee/Webmaster

As you all know, the Frankford Avenue neighborhood, as was much of Panama City and Bay County was devastated on Wednesday, October 10, 2018.

Temple B’nai Israel’s disaster plan was activated Monday, October 8th in advance of Hurricane Michael with the synagogue, Torahs, books, and computer all being secured. Although I have trained at the US Emergency Management Institute in Emmitsburg, MD, every natural disaster is different, and this storm posed its own unique challenges. Fortunately, our synagogue building sustained only minor damage; the Torahs and prayer books were unharmed.

Good disaster plans have three components: 1) people, 2) facilities and equipment, and 3) processes. All three have and continue to be addressed. During the days immediately following the hurricane, the TBI leadership actively worked to account for all congregants, along with assessing property damage, and help that any member may require. At this time all congregants have been accounted for. Unfortunately many are unable to live in their homes and are in temporary housing. Several have left the area.

During this post-disaster phase TBI is determined to first help stabilize the situation of each congregant. A rapid return to normal is the obvious goal. Additionally, as an integral part of the community, TBI has been working to the fullest extent possible to help Bay County recover from this horrific event.

As we are learning, recovery can be difficult and daunting. We continue to hear about the different resources available during storm recovery. The numerous phone calls and emails received by TBI from rabbis, synagogues, Jewish organizations, and concerned individuals worldwide to date have been extremely heartwarming. Many were accompanied with donations to the TBI Hurricane Michael Relief Fund. Each has received a timely and personalized response.

With so much to deal with during this time of recovery, it is understandable that you may feel overwhelmed. TBI wants to help. Please let any board member know of your situation and allow us to confidentially be of assistance.

Many of you may recall that last year after Hurricane Irma, we reached out to the Jewish communities of South Florida and welcomed displaced persons to join us at TBI for High Holy Day services. Now the tables have been turned. As Jews, we have learned how to remain strong during the most difficult of times.

Issue #1 of “Fantastic Four,” Marvel Comic’s first family of superheroes, appeared in the fall of 1961. Created by sons of Jewish immigrants – writer Stanley Martin Lieber (Stan Lee) and artist Jacob Kurtzberg (Jack Kirby) – the team included Benjamin Jacob Grimm, known as the Thing. Grimm, who grew up on New York City’s Lower East Side, recently married his long-time sweetheart, Alicia Masters. Artist Esad Ribic depicts the groom wearing a kippah and tallit – to which we say: Mazel tov!

Each month “Southern Jewish Life” magazine features local Jewish news for Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and the Florida panhandle, including Bay County. The cover of their November issue pictured Temple B’nai Israel – or at least our parking lot and roadside sign – and some of the catastrophic damage inflicted by Hurricane Michael. Under those downed pine trees across the street is the home of Mary Ellen Adamcryk, who temporarily resides in a trailer on our property until her house is rebuilt. A tip of the hat to Daniel Sternlicht, who brought this to your editor’s attention. For more information, visit SJL online at www.sjlmag.com.

Israel issues Stamps for Sukkot

In ancient times, the Date Palm tree was a vital resource for the inhabitants of Eretz Israel and it became a symbol of success and prosperity. The date palm was considered to be the perfect tree, as in “the righteous bloom like a date palm” (Psalms 92:13). The Talmudic midrash in Rabbah Genesis 41:1 explains the date palm tree’s preferential status and qualities: “As no part of the palm has any waste – the dates being eaten, the branches used for Hallel, the twigs for covering, the bast for ropes, the leaves for besoms and the planed boards for ceiling rooms – so are there none worthless in Israel.”

Lulav and Dates

On the first day of Sukkot the Israelites were commanded to take the 4 species, as stated in Leviticus 23:40 – “On the first day you shall take the product of the citron trees, branches of palm trees, boughs of leafy trees and willows of the brook.” Tradition has identified the term “branches of palm trees” as the lulav (frond) that grows at the top of the date palm tree. The 4 species mitzvah includes blessing the lulav and the Talmud explains (Sukka 27:2) that one specifically blesses the lulav because it is the highest and most prominent of the four species. The Rabbah Leviticus midrash 20:12 equates the 4 species to different groups within the Jewish people and notes the palm frond “has flavor, but no scent.” The “flavor” refers of course to the sweet taste of the date fruit.

Palm Fronds and Fibers

The leaves of the Date Palm were called by various names in different biblical sources. For example: “palm branches” (Leviticus 23:40) and “palms” (Nehemiah 8:15). The midrash in Rabbah Genesis emphasizes the use of palm branches as covering for the huts in which the Israelites were commanded to dwell during the days of the Sukkot festival. Strong fibers that were woven into rope grow in the base of the palm fronds. These ropes were used to make baskets and mats. Talmud tractate Yevamot (102:72) mentions a “fiber sandal” and so the stamp tab features an illustration of a sandal woven from palm fibers, Roman period, Dura-Europos, Syria.

Roofed with Palm Frond Bases

The trunks of felled date palm trees provided material for building houses and huts. The whole trunks served as pillars and the worked beams were used as the base for the ceiling. The palm frond bases, which are the thin stems where the date fruit grows, were woven to create sieves for sorting grains. The sieve shown on the stamp tab is from the Israelite Period (8th century BCE) and was discovered in archeological excavations conducted at the Kuntillet Ajrud site in the Sinai Desert.

October 22: Volunteers helped Sonny & Alma Glass salvage possessions and pack up after their apartment was flooded by the Hurricane, and Tammy Marinuzzi & Pavel Amromin graciously provided lunch at their home.

November 2: Our 1st post-storm Shabbat Service was led by Mike & Mary Starkman, in memory of those killed at Tree of Life - Or L'Simcha Congregation in Pittsburg. Afterwards Mike displayed the Torah for the benefit of visitors.
